

Have you any words of wisdom for next year's group?

Just be confident and brave, no one will judge you so show your inner self! (Also, I would suggest doing it on something you like as it will make things a lot easier)!

Just be talkative!
You've been gifted with a voice so make you use it when needed!

Choose a topic that you are interested in because you can talk about it even straight from your head. Try to be as creative as possible.

Don't be nervous. I know it sounds stupid, and you've heard it a million times before, but its honestly the best advice I can give. I sit at the front of the class, so I noticed when people's hands were shaking, and I also noticed that those people had some of the best presentations.

Just look ahead! You will get through it. Don't think about it too much because there is no need to worry. Everyone has to do it and all you need to do is be confident and show that you can do this!
Everyone believes in you!

My advice would be to just do it. The longer you wait the harder is to do it. Also, you're scared people will judge you, just remember that everyone is just as scared to do theirs to even think about what your doing so no one is judging.
